

A BRAVE MESSENGER.

He Prevents the Looting of His Car by Train Robbers.

KILLED ONE, WOUNDED ANOTHER.

The Best of the Gang Then Made Their Escape, but Are Being Pursued—Moved to the Members of the Duluth Gang.

POND CRICK, O. T., April 11.—A train on the Rock Island road was approaching Arkon on Tuesday night, when a band of robbers, numbering about a dozen, and armed with revolvers, shot at the train. The train stopped, and the robbers, who were dressed in civilian clothes, got out of the car and fired at the passengers. One man was killed and another wounded. The robbers then made their escape, but are being pursued by the police.

Jack Harmon, the Wells Fargo express messenger, held up by the robbers and shot at the car door, is now in the hospital. He is recovering from his wounds. The robbers then made their escape, but are being pursued by the police.

The dead and wounded robbers were brought to Pond Creek. Some of the citizens believe them to be members of the Duluth gang.

South Carolina Safe for Investment.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 11.—The Columbia Register today publishes an article in which it declares the false impression which it says has been formed on account of the recent troubles in that state. Bankers complain that they cannot get money from southern banks, and it is claimed that certain investments have been made or are in contemplation of being made, and the investigations discontinued. Governor Tillman, in an interview, says that financial danger appears to be in the air. He gives assurance to the world that law and order will be maintained in South Carolina, and that there will be no further outbreak.

Interest-Free Money Statistics.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 11.—The April bulletin of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia contains some interesting statistics from the advance sheets of the state money superintendents. A comparison of the statistics resulting from mining and railroading shows that the former is not so much more dangerous than the latter as it is usually considered. Out of every 100 employees in the bituminous coal mines 98 were killed, out of every 100 in the iron mines 95 were killed, out of every 100 in the steel mills 90 were killed, out of every 100 in the railroads 85 were killed. The statistics show that the coal mines are the most dangerous, followed by the iron mines, then the steel mills, and finally the railroads.

Victory for Penn Election.

ALBANY, April 11.—One of the greatest municipal elections ever held in this city was held last night by almost unanimous vote of the public mind when the citizens showed that the Democratic ticket had been defeated by a tremendous majority in favor of the pure election party, composed of Republicans and Independent Democrats. Repudiation from New York, Troy and West Troy who attempted to vote came to grief, no returns being made. In most instances the electors confessed and were jailed. Owen E. Wilson, the Independent candidate for mayor, was elected over James Rooney by a majority of 4,000. Last year the Democratic candidate for secretary of state had 3,500 majority.

He related facts concerning the conference of the Northern Pacific at the time of the threatened strike. The man had thought that he could not leave the employ of the railway. The Puzzle Solved.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most nauseous and disgusting of the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cure of chronic catarrh by any of the many modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising. No druggist is without it.

A REMARKABLE COAT.

Successful Test of Tailor Dowe's Great Invention.

WITHSTOOD A STORM OF BULLETS.

The Inventor Died in His Mysteries. Garment Resisted Bullets, Fired by the New German Army Rifle. That Had Pierced a Block of Solid Oak.

BERLIN, April 11.—Experts in military affairs, not only in this city, but throughout Europe, are following the recent experiments made with the latter proof coat invented by Herr Dowe, the Mannheim tailor. There seems to be no longer any doubt that this invention is a most valuable one. The Russian ambassador fired two shots at the coat while he was engaged in his bullet proof coat, and Dowe sustained it without injury.

The experiment was before Count Von Schouvaloff was not confined to simply firing two shots at Dowe. They began with a thorough test of the new rifle in use in the German army. From a box of cartridges one was selected at random, the rifle was loaded and was then fired at a block of solid oak, which was pierced by the small, steel like bullet. This showed that the rifle and cartridges were of the regulation pattern and well calculated to test the value of the most efficient steel armor ever manufactured.

much less a "bullet proof" coat. In fact it was stated before the experiments commenced that no armor was ever manufactured which could withstand a shot from the rifle now in use in the army of Germany.

After the shot at the block of oak Dowe dressed himself in his bullet proof coat and offered himself as a target. While the rifle was being aimed at the tailor the spectators were struck to an extraordinary degree of nervousness, and instinctively closed their eyes in anticipation of seeing Dowe killed on the spot. But after the report of the rifle rang out and the tailor was seen standing, apparently unharmed, there was a feeling of immense relief among every one present. Dowe immediately noticed the state of excitement produced by the experiment, for he smiled, much to the relief of the onlookers, and said "I feel nothing." A second shot was then fired directly at the tailor's heart, but it had the same effect as the first. The bullet was absolutely harmless, and both the coat and the inventor were unharmed.

The military officers who were present expressed themselves as thoroughly convinced of the effectiveness of the bullet proof coat, which seems likely to make an entirely new departure in the history of modern warfare.

Then commenced a second series of experiments which were even more interesting than the first. A horse was covered with a bullet proof coat, for it is proposed that the cavalry of the future is to be protected by this wonderful material. In this case a number of shots were fired in quick succession at the animal, while it was quietly eating oats from a manger. The horse, a well-trained cavalry mount, started slightly at the first shot, apparently, however, only disturbed by the unexpected report of the rifle. Then other shots were fired as quickly as possible, some of them striking almost in the same place as previous bullets, but the horse continued eating as if nothing extraordinary was happening.

As in the case of the bullet proof coat worn by Herr Dowe himself all the bullets fired at the coat covering the horse were found to be imbedded in the material, but the animal itself was unharmed.

A naval officer who was present at the experiments asked Herr Dowe if his bullet proof coat could be applied to war ships, and he was assured by the inventor that a ship protected by his bullet proof material could stand a pounding from all the war ships in the world without sustaining any considerable damage. Of course this is only Herr Dowe's theory, but as he seems to have carried out his theory in regard to the bullet proof coat for soldiers it does not seem unlikely that he may be able to carry out his theory in regard to protecting war ships.

Dowe has been at work on his new invention for a long time past. The first experiments of an important nature took place in Mannheim shortly before Christmas. The targets were covered with the new material, and at a range of about 110 yards bullets from the new army rifle went through the targets and fell behind them.

The new garment is described as looking like ordinary army clothing material, the running secret substance being placed beneath the outside cloth. The garment is in the nature of a breast plate, and is fastened to the side buttons of the soldier's uniform. It is only to be used in actual warfare and weighs about six pounds.

Previous to the experiments of Sunday last Dowe's bullet proof coat had been experimented on before a military commission, all styles of rifles used in the German army within the last five years being tested against it with the most satisfactory results.

A large firm of army contractors offered Dowe an enormous sum for his invention, but the tailor refused. Representatives of several foreign governments have been making strong efforts to obtain Herr Dowe's secret, but it is said that all these efforts have failed, and pattern Germans express the desire that the German government should secure Herr Dowe's secret, that the bullet proof coat may be used by the German army.

It is said that 5,000,000 marks have been offered to Herr Dowe by the German government for his invention.

A Brilliant Case.

Martin C. Brown, Druggist, Meriden, Conn., says: I have sold your Sulphur Bitters for years, and, contrary to most medicines, I never sold a bottle to any one who said it did not help them. They cured me of those terrible sick headaches when every other remedy failed.
